Sitka receives $500,000 Wood Products funding

The UAS Sitka campus has received first-year funding in the amount of $539,000 to begin a program directed toward helping Alaska become competitive in the value-added wood products industry.

"UAS will now be able to develop facilities, staff and expert assistance for individuals, industry and government agencies focusing on forest products utilization issues," according to Kathie Etulain, assistant director at the Sitka campus and one of the principal investigators for the project.

Program funding comes from the U.S. Department of Agriculture Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service (CSREES) through UAF, Alaska's land grant campus. Only eight other universities nationwide participate in this special grants program. For the past 15 years this has been an on-going program with annual funding going to participating universities in a non-competitive grant process. The appropriation for next year's funding for the UAS Sitka program is $650,000, pending congressional approval.

UAS will be working in conjunction with staff/faculty at the UAF School of Agriculture and Land Resources Management in Fairbanks to impact the forest products industry statewide.

UAS has also committed $150,000 of this year's grant money to support the Alaska Manufacturer's Association in their efforts to establish an in-grade testing program in Ketchikan.

Evening at Egan talks Fridays at 7 p.m.

Professor Emeritus Wally Olson presents "Spanish Expeditions to Alaska, 1774-1792" at 7 p.m. Friday in Egan Library. It is the latest in the Evening at Egan fall series. Cathy Connor presents "Disappearing Southeast Alaska Glaciers," on Oct. 27.

UA enrollment

UA President Mark Hamilton reports fall enrollment figures show that the University of Alaska has stopped the decline in enrollment, and is edging upwards. Student headcount systemwide is up 2%, and student credit hours are up 1.3%, he said. Student tuition revenue is up 4.4%.

Among the main campuses, UAS in Juneau has the strongest showing with student headcount and student credit hours up 4% and 1.4% respectively.

UAF student headcount and student credit hours are up 1.3% and 0.9% respectively. UAA, showed a decline in both student headcount and student credit hours of 2.1% and 1% respectively.

When enrollment figures from the community campuses are included, each university showed an increase in student headcount.

Greg Wagner tells the UAS story at a college fair.

Recruiting trips

More Student Services staff than ever before are attending college fairs to promote UAS. Dean of Students Bruce Gifford will attend national fairs in Chicago and Milwaukee that attract 15,000 and 8,000 students respectively. Greg Wagner is currently attending fairs in Portland, Seattle and Boise. Timi Tullis attends the Ketchikan fair and Teri Smith attends upcoming fairs in Anchorage and Fairbanks.

Egan classroom addition.

Classroom addition approved

The first phase of construction on the William Egan Library Classroom Wing Addition at UAS was approved by the Board of Regents at their most recent meeting, at a cost not to exceed $3.8 million. The first-phase construction contract is expected to be awarded by the end of the year.

Hypnotist Oct. 26

Andrew Becker will "explore the outer limits of your mind" during a performance at the Juneau Student Activity Center at 8 p.m. on Oct. 26. The hypnotist's show is free to SAC members and $5 general admission. A special dinner in the Maurant Cafe will precede the show.

Halloween events

Juneau campus offices are challenging each other to Halloween decorations/costume contests. The Education, Liberal Arts and Science office is so confident they will prepare a potluck lunch for any other office that beats them. Student activities programmer Lola Savatgy is coordinating judging. Personal costume judging takes place at 1 p.m. in the Maurant Cafe on Oct. 31.

Banfield Hall haunted house for community children is 6 p.m. on Oct. 28. The UAS Holiday Dance starts at 9 p.m. Oct. 28 at the SAC. Prizes will be offered for the best faculty/staff costumes at the dance Oct. 28. Manager Dave Kleinpeter says, "This would be a great time to attend a function, mingle with students while never revealing your identity." Faculty and students read "Stories on a Dark Night," starting at 9 p.m. on Oct. 30 at SAC.

Beer/wine tasting Oct. 27

The UAS alumni have organized a beer and wine tasting event to raise money for student scholarships. It takes place from 6-8 p.m. Oct. 27 at the Hanger Ballroom. Tickets are $20 and available in the Chancellor's office. Call 6416.

CPM in Ketchikan

The Certified Public Manager series is being revitalized on the Ketchikan campus. Both Level One and Level Two of the statewide professional training program will be offered next school year and is coordinated by Cathy LeCompte, who heads the campus Business Education department.

Ketchikan campus

New Ketchikan student government officers have been selected to join President Vicki Inkster. They are: Cheryl Killian, vice president; Tami Frank, treasurer; Roxie, secretary; Margaret Cloud, social chair; and Karma Cobb, student representative.

Several Ketchikan classes are starting. They include Radar Observer, next week; First Aid/CPR, Oct. 28/29; Refrigeration Certification next month. Food Service classes are in the development stage for next fall.

Faculty/Staff News
